The London Times on the Sp

The Spanish squadron in the Pacific has verified the apprehension of Lord Clarendon by continuing its cruise of devastation along the shores of South America. On the 16th of last month our Foreign Secretary wrote to the British Minister at Valparaise expressing his migrivings as to the ulterior destination and career of Admiral Nunez and his white. The Spanish Companyed had ing his misgivings as to the ulterior destination and career of Admiral Nunez and his ships. The Spanish Commander had generously announced, after the bombardment of Valparaiso, that he would not, "unless under very grave provocation," cannonade that defenceless town a second time; but with this magnanimous pledge his assurances ended, and there was obvious reasons for surmising that the havoc which had been wrought at Valparaiso would be repeated at other ports of Chili and Peru. The justice of these suspicious has been already confirmed. Another town has been attacked by the destroying squadron; but it will be learnt with universal satisfaction that on this occasion the Spanish ships met with a suitable reception, and that, if they have not actually experienced a complete defeat, they have at any rate no reason to boast of the encounter.

It was on the 31st of March that Valpahave at any rate no reason to boast of the encounter.

It was on the 31st of March that Vaiparaiso was bombarded, and on the 25th of April the Spanish feet arrived off the port of Callao, the harbor of the great Peruvian city of Lima. It was at once seen that an attack was designed, but Callao was not, like Valparaiso, unfortified and defenceless. The town is protected by batteries of modern fashion and armament, and though the authorities appear to have been taken by surprise, they made immediate preparations for a vigorous resistance. To the north of the town, which stands on a point of land jutting into the sea, were four batteries, two of which mounted only 32-pounders, but the other two were of a very different character. One of them was armed with two 400-pounders, rifled; the other was in the form of an fron turret, on which were mounted two Blakely

The avenging squadron has met its match, in its career of devastation it has veceived a severe check, and it must either forego its mission or opine is instance to unfortified price, we should think, would revolt. At the same time it is hard to fathom the spiritin which the Spaniards have been acting, Admiral Nanes told the Hritish Minister at Valparaiso that "Spain was propared to see are quadron at the bottom of the Pacific but not in the waters of Europe with disgrently framed on that general understanding. This means nothing less than that the Admiral was to kill, burn and destroy, even at his own peril, if he could not succeed in dictating his own terms. The satisfaction demanded by Spain amounted simply to a requirement that those who would not do manded by Spain amounted simply to a requirement that those who would not do manded by Spain amounted simply to a requirement that those who would not do manded by Spain amounted simply to a requirement that those who would not do manded by Spain amounted simply to a requirement that those who would not do without the country. The politicing absolid feel the weight of the blows, and as independent as before. The Spaniards have not the least hope of reducing the South American republic to submission, one over on putting any material coercion on them. All they can do is to set fire to two which the state of the state of

"The internal arrangement of affairs at the Harem is very similar to that of a young ladies' boarding-school. Each woman having her own room, her affairs are all centered there. EMARKS OF MR. PERRIME.

Hon. Mr. Perrine, formerly of Maryland and Tennessee, and now of New York, was the next speaker. He said the present revival was not to end to night, but would be renewed on Saturday night, when a gallant son of old Missouri would exhort the multitude, and when he was done Geo. Francis Train would follow. He assured the people that a rich treat was in store for them—one that they would take like children take castor-oil—with a yell. He paid a high compliment to Gov. Swann, who had dared do all became a man—who had dared stand up in the midst of fansticism and tell the people what were their rights, and the dangers that beset them. He advised all to stand by the Executive of the State, and he was confident the people would stand by the Gavernor.

The early history of slavery was alluded to when New York, at the foundation of the Constitution of the United States, owned 22,000 slaves, which these pious people took care to sell to Maryland and other Southern States before they turned philanthropic negroworshippers. Massachusetts followed New York in the slave cause. [Some one in the conditions of the people would stand by the speaker, and he was about to be removed, when Mr. P. exclaimed, "No, no, lef him remain—for as fong as the lamp continues to burn, there is hope for the greatest sinner to return. Now let him stay; I want to talk to sinners, not to the righteons."] The speaker then continued in a strain of humorous remarks, highly pleasing to the addience.

The president of the meeting next introduced the Hon. Chas. E. Phelps, the representative in Congress of the third congressional district of Maryland, as a gallant soldier and a faithful representative.

Mr. Phelps said that this was the first opportunity of which he had availed himself to meet face to face those who had confided to him a most important trust. After expressing his regret at the absence of ex-Governor Bradford and commending the course adopted by Govern
